FAQ

1. Why is Poon Hill famous?

Poon Hill (3,210m) is one of Nepal's best sunrise viewpoints, offering a 360-degree panorama of the Annapurna and Dhaulagiri ranges, including Annapurna South, Machhapuchhre (Fishtail), and Hiunchuli.

2. How do I start the trek from Pokhara?

The trek begins with a drive from Pokhara to Nayapul, followed by a trek through Ulleri, Ghorepani, and Ghandruk, passing rhododendron forests and Gurung villages.

3. Are there teahouses or luxury lodges on this trek?

Yes, teahouses along the route provide basic yet comfortable accommodations with hot showers and local meals. Some villages, like Ghorepani and Ghandruk, also have upgraded lodges with better amenities.

4. Do I need a guide, or can I trek independently?

While many trek independently, hiring a guide enhances the experience, ensures safety, and helps with local navigation. Since April 2023, Nepal requires trekkers to have a licensed guide for safety reasons.

5. What is the best time to do this trek?

The best seasons are spring (March-May) for rhododendron blooms and autumn (September-November) for clear mountain views. Winter (December-February) is also good but can be cold at higher altitudes.
